I will twine 'mid the ringlets
 of my raven black hair.
 Oh the lilies so pale,
 and the roses so fair.
 The myrtle so bright
 with an emerald hue,
 and the pale aronatus
 with eyes of bright blue.

I will sing, and I will dance,
 and my laugh shall be gay.
 I will cease this wild weeping,
 and drive sorrow away.
 Tho' my heart is now breaking,
 he never shall know
 that his name made me tremble and my pale cheek to glow.

I will think of him never.
 I will be wildly gay.
 I will charm e'vry heart,
 and the crowd I will sway.
 I'll live yet to see him regret the dark hour
 when he won, then neglected, this frail wildwood flower.

He told me he loved me,
 and he promised to love
 through ill and misfortune,
 all others above.
 Another has won him.
 Ah! mis'ry to tell.
 He left me in silence.
 No word of farewell.

He taught me to love him,
 and he called me his flower that blossom'd for him
 all the brighter each hour.
 But I woke from my dreaming,
 found my idol was clay,
 and my visions of love
 have now all faded away.
